

E-Learning Course

Using Interreligious Dialogue (IRD) to Strengthen Peace, Reconciliation and Social Cohesion

COURSE DESCRIPTION

While interreligious dialogue benefits from being a scientific field of study, it also enjoys great applied capacity for everyday human life, within all contexts and for all situations. If the importance of interreligious dialogue may have been questioned twenty years ago, nowadays its necessity has become obvious, and many would argue even urgent. The practice of using interreligious dialogue (IRD) for building social cohesion, peace and reconciliation is rapidly emerging as a necessary tool for the twenty-first century education tool-box.

In this context, and with regards to the need for having a comprehensive and practical e-learning course on interreligious dialogue, the KAICIID E-Learning Programme has developed an e-learning course entitled, "Using Interreligious Dialogue (IRD) to Strengthen Peace, Reconciliation and Social Cohesion". This e-learning course is the result of an ongoing collaboration with renowned universities such as the University of Montreal, the Complutense University of Madrid and the Institute for the Sciences of Religions in Barcelona.

COURSE GOAL & OBJECTIVES

GOAL:

This e-learning course aims to strengthen the capacities of religious leaders, policy- and decision makers, KAICIID Fellows, faith based organizations, international organizations, civil society organizations, and government officials within the field of interreligious dialogue. It includes the basic concepts, methodologies, models and tools needed to use interreligious dialogue for peace and reconciliation.

SPECIFIC OBJECTIVES:

- To provide basic knowledge and skills in interreligious dialogue;
- To outline the historical background of interreligious dialogue from the five major religions of the world (Buddhism, Christianity, Hinduism, Islam, and Judaism) and clarify the geopolitical aspects of these religions;
- To present the various elements of interreligious conflicts through real examples and case studies;
- To explain how to use key theories, models and methods in interreligious dialogue as scientific tools in a given conflict situation, and illustrate the diversity and the complexity of the factors that play a part in interreligious dialogue;
- To explain and critically analyze factors which affect or escalate interreligious conflict situations;

LEARNING OBJECTIVES:

At the end of the course, participants will be able to:

- Demonstrate developing skills and knowledge of IRD concepts, tools and methodologies;
- Identify initiatives and best practices for addressing Islamophobia, Christianophobia and Anti-Semitism at the national and local levels
- Understand the conceptual landscape of dialogue, as well as the concepts and models of using interreligious dialogue for peace
- Experience an innovative approach to education on IRD as new scientific field

COURSE OUTLINE & MODULE DESCRIPTIONS

The e-learning course is comprised of 8 modules, which will be given in a moderated environment over an 8 week period.

Module 1

Theories and Methods in Interreligious Dialogue: A Brief Overview

Module 2

A Brief History of the Modern Interreligious Dialogue Movement

Module 3

Dialogue Theories and Ethics: Exploring the Conceptual Landscape of Dialogue

Module 4

Prejudices and Stereotypes: How to Treat Islamophobia, Christianophobia and Anti-Semitism

Module 5

Interfaith Dialogue on the Internet: The Religious Phenomenon in Virtual Communities and Social Networks

Module 6

Interfaith Peace and Dialogue Models: From Harmony to Liberation

Module 7

Interfaith Dialogue: A Venue for Peacebuilding

Module 8

Outcomes of Dialogue Processes: Obstacles and Hopes

Module 1:

Theories and Methods in Interreligious Dialogue: A Brief Overview

(Dr. Patrice Brodeur / University of Montreal)

This first module presents a brief overview on interreligious dialogue terminology as well as key theories. The aim of the module is to establish a foundation of the meaning of the dialogue, its various definitions and forms.

Key elements outlined in this module include an awareness of the diverse understandings of dialogue, the many ways in which dialogue can be used and the main methodologies which have emerged in the field.

Module 2:

A Brief History of the Modern Interreligious Dialogue Movement

(Dr. Patrice Brodeur / University of Montreal)

The second module provides an overview of key organizations involved in interreligious dialogue, including the history of their foundings. The aim of the module is to establish a foundation of significant events which have shaped interreligious dialogue both as a scientific field and also as a global solution to shared challenges. This module puts an emphasis on the historical events and key instances that contributed to the plurality and richness of the field.

Module 3:

Dialogue Theories and Ethics: Exploring the Conceptual Landscape of Dialogue

(Dr. Scherto Gill / University of Sussex)

In a highly polarized world where there are competing ideologies, values and embedded power imbalances, some decisions may be taken with finite knowledge and influenced by specific cultural and historical contexts and subjective narratives. Only dialogue, in its various forms and at its different levels, can help to recognize differences, develop shared meanings and seek understanding in order to work together towards a more just and humane world.

This module begins with an overview of the conceptual landscape of dialogue, and familiarizes the learner with the general arguments that propose best practices for engagement in dialogue. This overview of the general conceptual landscape of dialogue prepares participants to take a closer look at the ethics of dialogue.

Module 4:

Prejudices and Stereotypes: How to Treat Islamophobia, Christianophobia and Anti- Semitism

(Dr. Joan Hernandez-Serret / ISCREB)

Is it possible to establish a shared ethical framework for all religious traditions? This module aims to answer that question through analysis of the Global Ethic and the basis of common ethical principles. Participants will learn to place global ethics into the context of dialogue, resulting in increased efficiency in peacebuilding and greater cooperation between religions.

Module 5:

Interfaith Dialogue on the Internet: The Religious Phenomenon in Virtual Communities and Social Networks

(Dr. Javier Bustamante / Complutense University of Madrid)

In a world characterized by unrest and conflict, Information Technology is becoming increasingly relevant to everyday life. These tools can also provide great benefit to interreligious dialogue, when they are intelligently and positively used. While face-to-face dialogue is restricted to local communities, technology provides opportunities to connect with people from around the world, expanding the voices of interreligious discourse.

This module explores the religious phenomenon in virtual communities and social networks, as well as the impact of social media on interfaith dialogue, the achievements already accomplished, and the challenges to be confronted.

Module 6:

Interfaith Peace and Dialogue Models: From Harmony to Liberation

(Dr. Mohammed Abu-Nimer / American University, Washington DC.)

Dialogue is a transformative peacebuilding method because it changes a person's perception of "the Other" and of the tension or conflict between them. When these changes are mutual, dialogue transforms relationships from adversarial to respectful, opening the way for peaceful, inclusive solutions.

This module will present a comprehensive overview of the practical aspects of interreligious dialogue in the framework of conflict resolution/ peacebuilding, as well as the vital role that religions play in this process. It will also provide tested models of dialogue which place emphasis on religious identity.

Module 7:

Interfaith Dialogue: A Venue for Peacebuilding

(Dr. Mohammed Abu-Nimer / American University, Washington DC.)

This module will look at the dialogue principles, themes and topics that different interreligious dialogue groups have adopted. Building on the models discussed in the previous module, this session will dive deeper into roles that religious leaders and institutions can play in peacebuilding processes. Moreover, it further establishes a foundation for the key elements of these peace processes, and outlines the role that both religions and dialogue play.

Module 8:

Outcomes of Dialogue Processes: Obstacles and hopes

(Dr. Mohammed Abu-Nimer / American University, Washington DC.)

As a conclusion to our course, this module will introduce measurements for the effectiveness of interreligious dialogue and will analyze the different criteria used by interreligious dialogue organizations to assess their successes or failures. It will also look at the relationships between participants from different religious groups (minority or majority) and how each one of them perceives the notion of success in the field, particularly in terms of existing power-dynamics. Last but not least, the module asks a key question: where do we start and where do we want to end up in the interreligious dialogue process?

COURSE DESIGN AND METHODOLOGY

In order to ensure the best possible outreach, the course will be delivered through an interactive online platform, which allows users to take the course at their own pace. Course objectives are intended to be achieved through a variety of educational methods and technologies, designed to match personal learning styles, as well as by the inclusion of non-linear learning that aims to develop timely learning skills for adults.

At the same time, in order to allow participants maximum flexibility of scheduling, the learning will be conducted in an asynchronous manner. Using state-of-the-art training architecture, the KAICIID E-Learning Programme will combine self-learning with tests, assessments and online discussions. The pedagogy has been adapted for full-time career professionals and is specifically tailored to train participants through a variety of learning methods: absorb (read); do (activity); interact (socialise); and reflect (relate to one's own reality).

01. INTERACTIVE LESSON

Each lesson includes interactive exercises which give participants the chance to self-assess their knowledge. These exercises may be repeated freely, as the results do not count toward the final grade.

- Each lesson may have an average between 40-70 slides, including the interactive exercises.
- The system keeps track of your position so you may interrupt the lesson at any point. The system keeps track of your position. Upon your return the system will automatically return you to the point where you previously stopped.

02. DISCUSSION FORUMS

In each module, participants can access user-friendly forums to discuss topics initiated by the course facilitator.

Participants are also invited to initiate new discussion topics, as desired. All forums will be moderated by the course coordinator and course moderator-facilitator.

Participation in the discussion forums will not be graded. By contributing to the forums, participants gain a unique opportunity to increase knowledge of the specific subjects discussed and to share views and ideas with other course participants.

03. STUDY PLAN

The course has been designed to give each participant flexibility to plan his/her own learning progress.

The lessons, activities, and additional resources for all modules can be accessed throughout the course. Nevertheless, as this is a moderated/facilitated course, there are sessions where the progress needs to be linear to allow support by the facilitator and adequate coordination among participants.

For reference purposes, the discussions will remain available after the closing date.

PARTICIPANTS ASSESSMENT ACTIVITIES

The following activities will be graded and will account towards your final grade.

01. EVALUATION QUIZZES

Comprehension of course content will be assessed through brief, mandatory quizzes at the end of each module. Each of the eight quizzes contain a variety of question styles including multiple choice, true or false, matching, etc. Participants can attempt each evaluation quiz an unlimited amount of times, without incurring penalties toward the final grade.

02. CASE STUDIES

These exercises provide participants with space to express opinions, share experiences and put acquired knowledge into practice. Some activities will redirect students to the forum, so they can exchange views and lessons learned with other course participants.

03. COLLABORATIVE ACTIVITY

Participants will form virtual teams, using online discussion forums to review IRD initiatives and programmes. These teams will be asked to identify:

- Key components of the selected initiatives
- Identify best practices and potential challenges to be expected during implementation of short and long term interreligious dialogue programmes
- Key criteria necessary for designing and effectively implementing interreligious dialogue programmes and initiatives

04. CERTIFICATION

A Certificate of Completion will be issued to participants who achieve a minimum total score of 70% and who complete all the mandatory activities.

HARDWARE & SOFTWARE REQUIREMENTS
